POLICE SET TRAP FOR ACCOMPLICE

From the night the ransom money was paid.

Testimony which would have revealed the positive fact such an accomplice exists was deliberately withheld by the State during the trial in order that the issue of the guilt of Hauptmann might not be clouded.

These disclosures were made by the New York Daily News in a copyrighted article today.

This man, the News said, was the man who hid his face with a handkerchief and peered into Colonel Lindbergh's automobile while the father of the slain baby awaited his ransom money.

Dr. P. Condon.

The mystery man moved on and dropped his handkerchief, apparently as a signal to the ransom collector.

The fact that Hauptmann had an accomplice has long been known to the Department of Justice, the New York police and District Attorney Foley of the Bronx.

"According to the News article, the shadowy figure of this accomplice was described in the testimony of Colonel Lindbergh before that another man stood guard between the place where Bruno and Dr. Condon were conversing and the automobile in which Reich was waiting for his return.

Dr. Condon's and Reich's description of the Woodlawn Cemetery looked like a description of the man who dropped the handkerchief at St. Raymond's Cemetery on the night the ransom money was paid.

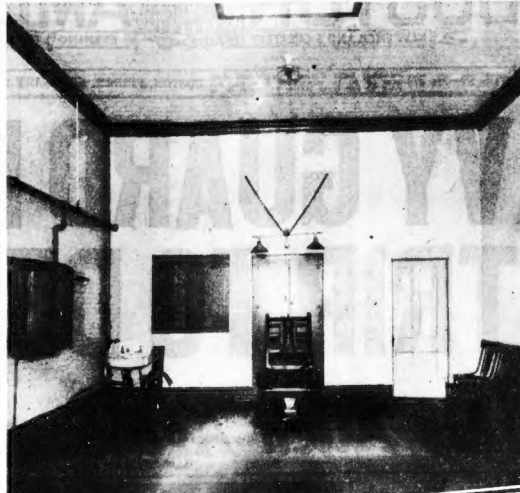

The statement of Dr. Condon (which can be heard on the Department of Justice's phonograph reproduction of his conversations with Hauptmann) that a man who spoke Italian told Bruno to "shut up" while the latter threatened communication to Julius's home in the Bronx.

The blood on the ransom money, one bill in every five required before Hauptmann's arrest was discovered in this way, and chemical analysis disclosed that the blood was human.

Did Bruno have more accomplices than one, and is the second confederate possibly the man who spoke Italian—dead?

Didn't Tell the Whole Story

The deposit slip, signed "J. J. Paulker" and presented at the Federal Reserve Bank in New York with $2,500 of the ransom money, which Bruno Richard Hauptmann did not write, and which the latter who received the gold certificates—

Bruno Jury Receive Stage Offer

By International News Service
Florence, N. J., Feb. 15.—Sheriff John H. Curtis, in whose custody, Bruno Richard Hauptmann remains until his removal to the state's prison in Trenton today, expressed amusement in the continued interest in Hauptmann.

I got two telephone calls from London last night," he said. "One paper that called talked to me 15 minutes. That must have cost something, eh?"

"What did they want to know in London?" he was asked.

"They wanted to know how Hauptmann is and what he will be taken to the death house," he replied.

The sheriff confirmed a report that the eight men and four women of the jury which snared Hauptmann's doom have been offered a fat contract by a New York theatrical agency to appear on the stage. He said the offer to the jury was made through a mutual friend.

"They sent an offer of $500 a week to Charles Walton, the foreman, and $200 a week to call the other jurors," Curtis said.

"All I could do was turn the offer over to the jurors and when they said no, I had to turn it back," he said.

"There has never been any news," he said, "definite or otherwise, to indicate that anybody was implicated other than Hauptmann."

"The case is closed as far as this office is concerned."

Foley denied truth in reports that an accomplice is known and that authorities are awaiting a favorable opportunity to trap him.

Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly said he never had heard that authorities knew of "an accomplice."

"Eventually, the police may find some truth in my theory that the crime was committed by at least four persons—none of them Hauptmann," Reilly observed. "But I can't reveal that the police ever acting on the accomplice angle."

EXECUTING BRUNO 'JUST ANOTHER JOB' TO ELLIOTT

'Soon Over' WON'T SAY IF HAUPTMANN IS GUILTY

By International News Service
New York, Feb. 15.—How does it feel to be the man who, barring a reversed decision, will stand behind the electric chair in New Jersey's state prison and send the deadly current through Bruno Richard Hauptmann's body?

"It doesn't make any difference to me who's sitting in the chair," said Robert Elliott, who is the man.

"I pay no attention to 'em. Half the time I don't know who they are."

"I don't want to know who they are. I never see 'em—careful not to—until they're up to the chair, and as soon as the job is finished, I beat it."

Mr. Elliott was somewhat testy about the subject, there he was comfortably curled up in his room at the Richmond Hotel home, reading about the Dornier situation, in whom he is greatly interested, and arguing with his daughter, who claimed it wasn't nice to see five babies at once.

Mr. Elliott thinks it was wonderful.

To Doom Millions

Elliott has performed hundreds of executions since his appointment in 1928. He executed Earl Snyder and Judd Gray at Sing Sing.

Barring a court reversal of the decision in the Hauptmann case, he will turn the switch that will send the murderer into eternity.

Of all his experiences, probably the oddest involved a woman, unable to reach Charlestown State Prison because of snow-bound trains, the triple execution of Snyder, Donnelly and Bull, three murderers, had to be postponed until the next day.

"I'm sorry, very sorry," says Hauptmann's mother, "he said, 'I don't know what troubles him emotionally—mother, I'm sure.'"

"Wives—well, I know one who got married again ten days after her husband's execution. Children—have I forgot it. Friends and relatives—they'll have nothing to do with it."

"The person himself is guilty of murder. But the mother, well, dare I say she can't see her anything but the kid she raised, the kid—well, you know what, I mean."

"He broke off suddenly, glared at the reporter and said he didn't like reporters. The last one he saw couldn't answer, then went off and wrote a whole column.

A lean, white-haired man with a pleasant face, the official executioner for Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania doesn't look much like an executioner.

"He can't see why people always want to know how he feels when he executes criminals."

"Just a Job"

"After all," he said, "it's just a job as far as I'm concerned. I'm an electrician. I throw the switch. That's all I've got to do with it. Might as well throw a light switch. I don't do anything but a small part in carrying out the law."

"His predecessor committed suicide."

"But I don't think the work had anything to do with it," Elliott said.

"Hauptmann? I couldn't help knowing something about it. I couldn't open a paper without having his name smack me in the eye."

"Do you think Hauptmann is guilty?"

"I won't talk about that. I'll say this: I don't believe an innocent man has gone to the chair in recent years here. I certainly hope not. But Hauptmann isn't in the chair yet, remember that."

Hoover Says Report of Accomplice Is False

Washington, Feb. 15.—Statements that federal officers have evidence that Bruno Richard Hauptmann had an accomplice in the Lindbergh kidnaping were termed false today by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the division of investigation of the Department of Justice.

The Lindbergh kidnap-murder case was said to be closed so far as the special agents of the Department of Justice are concerned. It was asserted that Hauptmann now facing death in the electric chair, is guilty and no other suspects are involved.

"It would be reprehensible, even bordering on criminal, to conceal any evidence that would shed light on the guilt or innocence of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and the division of investigation has no other evidence in this case," Hoover said.

Job Done; Jurors Home

MRS. VERNA SNYDER

FRED SNYDER

It looks as if Fred Snyder, Flemington, N. J., blacksmith, anticipates some real home cooking again, now that his wife, portly Verna Snyder, is released at last from her service as a member of the Hauptmann jury. Both Fred and Verna appear glad the trial is over.

It's been 43 days since George Voorhees of the Hauptmann jury has had any of this sort of petting. So now the family makes up for lost time. In the group are Dad and Mother Voorhees, Voorhees and their two children, Boulah, 17, and Fred, 21.

Elmer Smith, Hauptmann juror, is "just getting acquainted again" with his young wife, from whom he has been separated during the 43 days of the trial. They are shown in their home in Lambertville, N. J.

The whole family welcomes Hauptmann juror Charles Snyder back to his home in Clinton Township, N. J. The boys are Snyder's two sons, Frank and Harry. Mrs. Snyder completes the reunion group.

BALLOT ON DEATH BARED BY JUROR

All Agreed on Guilt

(Copyright, 1935, by Universal Service)

Lebanon, N. J., Feb. 15.—The real "inside" story of the eight men and four women who convicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann and sent him to death may never be known—but here is as much as anyone can find out today.

The testimony of Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh affected them most. They had read the classics—and they thought the classics were "awful."

The juror with heart trouble—Latham C. Case—worried them. They lost their sense of humor.

Agreed on Guilt

Two women and one man prevented a death penalty verdict on the first of the five ballots taken. The "inside" story of the jury may never be known because the 12 solemnly agreed not to talk. The reason is that they wanted to get even with a curious public whose appointed officials would not let the jury know what was going on in the outside world during those 42 days.

But George I. Voorhees, 45-year-old stock breeder, after a joyful reunion with his wife and three grown children, couldn't keep absolutely mum. So glad to be "out of the pen," he disclosed:

"My ballots, each of the five times, always were marked 'murder in the first—penalty death.'"

Remembers Anne

"It was my aberration from our conversation during the trial that the verdict would be guilty. The big problem was in appreciating justice."

"Two women and a man held the opinion that the defendant had accomplices and that death in the chair might prevent the arrest of anyone who possibly aided him. For four ballots we couldn't get the death penalty and on the fifth we did."

"The scene that stirred our emotions most during the trial was the picture of Anne Morrow Lindbergh holding her murdered baby's garment while identifying it. The scene was as indelible as the defendant's guilt."

"I will not tell what we did during the long wait—what games we played."

"They gave us classics to read. Await! We'd read them all anyway, most of us. There was Shakespeare and Dickens they let us have officially—and one of us managed to smuggle in a volume of De Mopassant."

"That's all I'll tell. Let the public be curious. We were curious about the public—and a lot of food it did eat."

"Every juror lost his sense of humor toward the end. Lots of 'evidence' was disregarded as irrelevant. We suspected some witnesses."

"We were afraid Case would have a heart attack every time we entered the hotel. It kept us on edge. It was worth one's life to venture the slightest jest."

"It was a harrowing experience. Would I do it again? Maybe as a duty—I think we might all do that's life."

Anna Steadfastly Loyal to Husband

By DOROTHY ROE

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 15.—Anna Hauptmann, a plain, uneducated ex-waitress and peasant woman, showed the modern world the meaning of the words:

"Till death do us part."

The woman who sat silent and alone in the midst of a hubbub and staring crowd and heard her husband sentenced to die in the electric chair, rushed to the stricken man facing death in his barren cell.

To the End

Later, when she had regained her composure after the tragic thick wire nothing that always separated them in the jail, she said:

"Things can't be like this. The whole world can't be wrong. Richard knows and I know that he would not kill a little baby. There must be somebody else who will believe it."

"Richard is not a coward. He can fight. We will fight this together. He was shocked, yes, by the verdict."

"But when they make the appeal, then things will be different."

"We won't give up yet. And whatever happens, he knows I am with him to the end."

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 15.—Egbert Rosecrans, one of Bruno Hauptmann's staff of lawyers, said here that Hauptmann refused food, eating only an orange and drinking half a cup of coffee during the day.

Mother's Mite Aids Bruno

(Copyright, 1935, by International News Service)

Kanzen, Germany, Feb. 15.—Three dollars and sixty cents—the widow's mite—were sent to Bruno Richard Hauptmann by his aged mother today to help save him from the electric chair.

"It was all she could 'scrape together' to contribute in the appeal fund of the convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby. But there's more. Frau Paula Hauptmann placed the nine marks carefully in an envelope and sent them along with a plea to her son's lawyers to save his life."

With this pitiful contribution Frau Hauptmann reached a letter to Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, in which she wrote:

"I wish I had a million marks to save my innocent son from the electric chair."

"I would gladly sacrifice my last penny even though the cause looks hopeless now. I want to save my son's honor and my family's honor and rescue an innocent man from death. Therefore I send you, Mr. Reilly, nine marks which I ask I can scrape together right now."

She signed her letter "An Unhappy Mother."

Other residents of Kanzen, many of whom believe Bruno innocent, are expected to make a contribution.

BRUNO REMAINS QUESTION MARK

Calm Cloaks Feelings

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

Copyright, 1935, by International News Service

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 15.—For six long and arduous weeks I have sat in the courtroom and watched Bruno Richard Hauptmann from a distance—from a seat 10 feet away. I could size him up only in an impersonal way. To me he was an enigma.

I have now met the man face-to-face in his cell. No glaring crowds. No guards to grip his wrists. No cameras to still his tongue. And Bruno Hauptmann is still a man of mystery to me.

You wouldn't think the man was the convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby, in talk with him. You'd never suspect the shadow of the electric chair loomed over him. Hauptmann was calm, deliberate, almost shy. He conversed in a calm, quiet manner. When I suggested that despite his aged appearance, he might have to be held without the slightest tremor in his voice.

"If I have to sit in the electric chair I will go like a man."

I have seen them die. I believe this man Hauptmann would go just that way.

He was calmly pacing his cell when I entered the third floor. The place was brightly lit and exceptionally clean.

I shook hands with Hauptmann through the white partition. His grip was firm. I noticed there was a hink to his small, deep-set, blue-gray eyes. There was nothing furtive about the man. He looked me in the eye.

"I Have Told All"

I started off easily, for this man had never seen me before. But after a while I told him some people suspected he had not told all. That he was hiding something. Was there any chance that he would make a confession?

"If I had a confession to make I would have done it five months ago and saved my wife and child and my mother in Germany all this misery. I have nothing to confess. I have told all I know."

He declared there was nobody to cover up.

The man seemed sincere when he said this. He gave a little gesture with his hand to emphasize what he said.

I noted that he was well-built. He was standing there in his undershirt, his arms bare. They were brown, as if they had been exposed to the sun. His muscles were long, slim and trim.

How does an ex-convict look the prospect of dying in the electric chair?

"You can imagine how I feel," he said, his voice very low but even and distinct. "For myself I have no fear. I worry only about my wife and my child and my mother (mother)."

"My conscience is clear. If I have to die I will die like a man. Certainly."

Somehow you believed this man.

BONUS VOTE SURE, SAYS BELGRANO

Congress Poll Told

Payment of the bonus, withdrawal of American recognition of Soviet Russia and a co-ordinated war against crime are the current major objectives of the American Legion.

So said Frank M. Belgrano, Jr., national commander of the veterans' organization, today on his arrival in Boston for a two-day visit in connection with National Defense Week.

Payment of the bonus will be voted in this session of Congress, he said, the Legion having made 15 polls of Senate and House to assure itself of this.

"I am also optimistic that Congress will cancel the interest charges on advances to veterans," said Belgrano.

"The Administration is spending billions for relief. There is no better way in which it can get money into circulation and stimulate business than by paying its contractual debts to the veteran."

The national commander indicated he regarded the combating of radiation and subversion as activities of extreme importance. He said:

"I shall appeal to every post commander in Massachusetts and New England to combat Communism in his community."

The Legion demands withdrawal of American recognition of the Soviet.

"Ever since we recognized Soviet Russia, it has been unfaithful to its promise to refrain from revolutionary propaganda in this country. We have been flooded with inflammatory Red literature."

The Legion has also drafted an executive program, Belgrano said. He indicated the veterans would cooperate closely with Attorney General Cummings' program and that outlined by Governor Curley.

He had special praise for the latter. However, he was unable to see the governor on his visit to the State House. While Governor Curley was in conference with Public Safety Commissioner Paul Kirk, the Legion chief addressed the House.

"There is room for only one 'ism' in America," he said, "and that is Americanism."

PENSION

"Ban" in Bonus COMPROMISE

By Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 15.—Leaders in Congress said today that if veterans press for immediate payment of the $2,100,000,000 bonus, President Roosevelt plans to insist that they yield all claims to new pension benefits in the future.

The leaders said the President remarked that even though such a bargain might not actually be binding it would constitute at least a "moral" deterrent to new demands.

It was emphasized that the President would not willingly see Congress pass a bonus bill even under that agreement. Opinion in Congress as to what will happen to the bonus bill is still divided.

One leader said that the President, in adopting his attitude on pensions, has an eye on one of the largest potential expenditures in the future, involving more than $100,000,000 a year.

HOME LOAN

Probe Urged

Washington, Feb. 15.—(INS)—Charging inefficiency, graft and discrimination against the Home Owners' Loan Corp., the members of Congress today urged the House rules committee to order an investigation of the $3,000,000,000 government corporation.

President Roosevelt was quoted as having said the HOLC should welcome an investigation. "The HOLC," the committee was told, is seeking to block it.

'Bonus Will Be Voted!'

FRANK N. BELGRANO JEREMIAH J. TWOOMEY

After having made no less than 15 polls of the United States Senate and House of Representatives, the American Legion is confident of passage of the veterans' bonus bill, Frank N. lumbia to prosecute witnesses who refuse to answer questions or refuse to produce documents and evidence at one time during the life of the investigating committee.

The committee reviewed the evidence and testimony gathered during many months of inquiry in Washington, New York, Los Angeles, Newark and Asheville, N. C., concerning Nazi, Fascist and Communist activities.

Condemning the establishment of Nazi principles here, the report asserted:

"When this committee was appointed the Nazi movement had made considerable headway. . . Its efforts and activity were disturbing. The disclosures made by the committee not only have stopped their progress. . . but a disintegration of the movement has and is taking place."

Involve Diplomats

Isolated cases of Panist activities were reported. Additional case was received recently implicating an Italian vice-consul in Detroit. A Mexican consul at San Bernardino, Cal., also was charged with interfering with the religious freedom of the people. Both cases have been referred to the State Department for investigation.

No evidence was presented to show that the proposed Panist march on Washington to seize the government was inspired by any European country, the report said. Major General Smedley D. Butler, retired, claimed he had been appointed the march.

Prison Break

Two alleged members of a quartet of jail breakers appeared today as witnesses in their own defense in a double murder session of Suffolk superior court.

Two others, Joseph Leveque, confessed ring leader of the group, and Lawrence Boldway, have started to serve their long terms again, with the prospect of several years more for the break.

Those on trial today are Thaddeus Zakreewski, a lifer, and William Baker, now serving a term of 18 to 20 years. They pleaded not guilty to the break, and were given a jury trial.

Worcester, Feb. 15.—Wilfred Dugre, 38, fell to his death today and when she heard the news, Mrs. Lora Estabrook, 50, of Auburn committed suicide, leaving a note saying he was her only friend.

Dugre, a widower, fell from a window on the fifth floor of the Hotel Kenmore, Main street.

Mrs. Estabrook, divorcee, was informed by neighbors at her home. Her son later found her dead from gas on the kitchen floor. Her note to him said:

"Dada" is her 84-year-old father. Her son is 23.

ROOSEVELT PROBLEM

Factories for Child Puzzles

JOBLESS POLICE

By International News Service
Washington, Feb. 15.—President Roosevelt can build federal shoe clothing or furniture factories, to provide work for the unemployed, under his $1,000,000,000 work relief bill, it was conceded in the Senate today by administration leaders.

Senator Carter Glass, (D., Va.), declared the President could have closed mills or newspapers under the terms approved by the House and this was why the Senate appropriation committee denied the President the power to use the huge work fund to "relieve economic maladjustments."

A coalition of Republicans and Democrats demanded the administration be given the right to find out $2,000,000,000 of projects that could be completed before June 30, 1937, when the $1,000,000,000 fund terminates.

The coalition demanded to know just how the President proposed to spend the other $2,000,000,000.

U. S. WARNS

Europe for CURB ON ARMS

By Associated Press
Geneva, Feb. 15.—Hugh Wilson, United States delegate to the world disarmament conference, warned the Powers today the people of the world want something done and done there that something must be done and in a relatively short time.

Referring to attacks made on the American draft, particularly by England and Italy, Wilson reminded the delegates the Americans merely followed their proposals along lines likely to command general approval.

"Our plan," he said, "is founded on the conviction of people everywhere that something must be done and in a relatively short time."

These suits have the 1935 "IT"

It's the details that give these suits added glamour. For instance, the trousers have 3 1/2 inch waistbands, one pair is pleated and the other is plain—and the sport has rings to adjust it with instead of the old-fashioned buckles that used to dig into you once in a while. DOUBLE NRA Probe SOUGHT

SENATORS IN NEW MOVE

By Associated Press
Washington, Feb. 15.—Senators striving for a broad investigation into charges of "abuses" under NRA sought today to assure such an inquiry despite a dispute which snagged the drive yesterday.

The investigation, it developed today, may be a two-way one.

Senators Nye (R.) of North Dakota and McCarran (D.) of Nevada introduced a resolution yesterday proposing an inquiry into 21 charges, including one that NRA had oppressed small business.

They met temporary obstruction to a Senate row over what committee should be designated to act.

At the same time, Senators King (D.) of Utah and Borah (R.) of Idaho prepared to press before a subcommittee of the judiciary committee the former's plan for investigating NRA "monopoly" charges.

King, who is chairman of the subcommittee, said that it was "essential" before the administration submit concrete proposals to extend the act.

Senator Borah, who, with Nye, has contended that NRA has discriminated against small business, added:

"I have all the facts necessary to satisfy myself in the matter. I, for one, am opposed to any extension of NRA. If they insist on extending it, there should be important modifying amendments."

"Didn't See Shooting," Di Marco Says

LEUTENANT DI MARCO
Dapper, self-possessed, young Mario Di Marco, sought for a lie in connection with the night club murder of Joseph "Red" Sweeney, tells police detectives early today that he didn't see the shooting, but did assist in taking the victim to the City hospital. He "hid out" until now, according to his story, because he is on parole from state prison on a manslaughter charge. Sergeant Leonard T. Banks is searching Di Marco as Lieutenant Louis DiSessa looks on. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

LYNN MAYOR Suffers Collapse

Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn collapsed in a Union street, Lynn, barber shop today, as he was reaching for his hat and coat.

Added by the barbers, he recovered sufficiently to return to city hall, where he was examined by Dr. James A. Dumas, city health commissioner, who said the mayor was overworked and should take a complete rest. The mayor agreed to go away immediately and remain for several weeks.

During the absence, President Timothy A. Conlin of the city council will be acting mayor of Lynn.

FORGER Swindled PRIESTS

Cambridge police today started extradition proceedings against John A. Duval, alias Jack Lorens, who was captured in St. Louis, Mo., and charged with forging checks in priests' names.

Duval, according to Captain John J. Conroy of Cambridge, was the same man who had pretended to be a Springfield priest while funeral services were being conducted at St. Patrick's Church, Cambridge, last June.

The man, Captain Conroy said, was in clerical garb and assumed illness during the services. He was taken to St. Patrick's rectory and there, allegedly stole blank checks which he had been signing and cashing against the amount of Father P. J. Buckley, the pastor.

TWO HURT In Hotel Fire

Rockland, Me., Feb. 15 (AP)—Fire today swept the 21-story Rockland hotel, forcing guests to flee and causing damage estimated at $50,000 to $60,000. Samuel Peterson, fireman, collapsed and fell into the arms of fellow firemen. Charles Kilder of Camden, a painter, was taken from the hotel basement, overcome by smoke.

The hotel was owned and operated by M. Frank Donahue, businessman.

Wife Dying After Mate's Fake Suicide

By International News Service
Yonkers, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Because her husband made a grim bluff at committing suicide after a family quarrel, Mrs. Margaret Houshield, 55, was near death today in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Last night the husband, John, 58, Westchester County parkway patrolman, told his wife she must refrain from "going out" with her sister.

When she protested he left her angrily and went to his room. On his way he stopped at the kitchen and got a bottle of catsup and a bottle of chili sauce.

Then, flinging himself across his bed, he snatched his law and dead with the catsup and sauce and fired one shot from his service revolver into the pillow.

His wife found him on the bed with what she supposed to be blood pouring down his face.

With a cry she picked up the revolver, pressed it against her side and fired. The bullet just missed her heart.

COOLIDGE In Mexico Probe

United States Senator Marcus A. Coolidge will join with other Massachusetts Congressmen in urging an investigation into the prosecution of religious sects in Mexico, he wired Mayor Mansfield.

The wire was in answer to one sent by the mayor to all Massachusetts legislators at Washington.

TUSCAN Loses Rudder, TOWED IN

The Merchants & Miners steamer Tuscan was being towed to port by the Coast Guard cutter Cayuga early today after she radioed for help. She lost her rudder after going through the Cape Cod canal and was drifting helplessly near Negro Ledge, Buzzards Bay.

The Cayuga was already in the vicinity, having spent a greater part of the night breaking a path through Buzzards Bay ice for the Savannah liner City of St. Louis.

The constant moaning of a fog horn off shore near Nahant, Swampscott and Lynn sent other Coast Guard craft in search for a ship in distress. A collar was found to have lost her way, and had come to anchor to await daylight.

Falls Overboard

A boat hook was used to fish Thomas Kennan, 26, from the water alongside Pier 1, East Boston, when he tumbled from the deck of the Newington freighter Harco early today.

He was treated for shock and immersed at East Boston Relief Hospital.

Mrs. Dionne On a Diet BUT—

By Associated Press
Detroit, Feb. 14.—The Dionnes—all of them except the quintuplets and their five brothers and sisters—came to town today. Mrs. Dionne, the father, had nothing at all to say. Mrs. Dionne said she was hungry.

She was, too, and made away with her share of the breakfast: Tomato juice, a double order of oatmeal, scrambled eggs, boiled eggs, bacon, ham, wheat cakes, toast, tea and coffee.

Through her interpreter, Mrs. Georgiana Rochon, she explained she was on a diet.

During the 11 days they have been away from their home in northern Ontario the Dionnes have received daily telegrams from Dr. Allan R. Dafoe containing the latest news of the quintuplets and their other children.

eight hundred and fifty million dollars on a war.

That seems a good deal of money to end after $49,000, but, possibly, "national honor" is involved. Also, there may be gold mines and other things in Ethiopia that might be worth collecting.

We marvel at any nation suggesting a "war" to cost only eight hundred and fifty million dollars. In this land of "wavy marks" if we even talked about war, European nations would borrow five or six thousand million dollars from us instantly, and Ethiopia, herself, might get eight hundred and fifty millions of our foolish dollars.

If we had war, the first group of dollar-a-year patriots would spend at least a billion for us, without any results. You remember two billions worth of airplanes would not fly and floating ships that never left the harbor. How do Europeans wage war so cheaply?

France also would like a little change from Ethiopia, a'il cose plant, for Ethiopian border tribesmen killed some French policemen, very valuable. Perhaps England will make it unpleasant then the poor Ethiopian Emperor, direct descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, in his own opinion, would know how Poland felt in the dividing-up days. He might have to wait for another world war and another Woodrow Wilson to put him together again. Mussolini is sending to Ethiopia 15,000 men, with tanks and planes, just to prove that he means it.

GIRL 3 Years ASLEEP

SLUMBER CAUSE IS MYSTERY

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Oak Park's feminine Rip Van Winkle entered into her fourth year of slumber today.

History has been made since Patricia Maguire, then 26, dropped asleep.

The Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and slain, Bruno Richard Hauptmann tried and convicted for the murder, Canada's famous Dionne quintuplets were born and lived to set a new record for human productivity, President Hoover vanished into the limbo of forgotten Presidents, and Franklin D. Roosevelt came along with a New Deal that is already an old story. None of these events have meant anything to Patricia Maguire, slumbering quietly at her Clarence avenue home.

Her mother, Mrs. Peter Miloy, who for three long years has prayed for her daughter's cure, has saved newspaper clippings of the past years. Patricia will want to know about them some day, she believes.

All efforts of physicians to rouse the girl from her slumber have been in vain. Massage has kept her muscles from atrophy. She has regained the power of eating semi-solid food, and at times she seems to comprehend written messages around her half-open eyes. But still she remains in a half-world between sleep and waking, and the cause remains a mystery.

U. S. GETS Everett Rum SAMPLES

Everett police today turned over to federal authorities information which they had gathered in relation to sales of alleged booting liquor.

Police declined to make known the names of places involved but it is known that one of them is on Main st. and that an analysis of the liquor samples taken there has also been given the federal authorities.

It is also known that another place is located not far from Glendale square.

Police say that the analysis showed pure juice added to liquor to make it appear like whiskey and that the alcohol used is a Sicilian alcohol.

QUICKSAND TALE WINS $10 PRIZE

ALLSTON MAN GETS CHECK

(Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)
EUGENE A. FISHER MISS TRIVIA FRISSORA
Floyd Gibbons Liked His Adventure Story

Sinking in quicksand brought Eugene A. "Bud" Fisher of 1560 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, $10 today—but take a tip and don't try the same thing, because quicksand money isn't easy money.

Floyd Gibbons, globe trotter, war correspondent, headline hunter and himself often in tight places, awarded the $10 prize to Fisher for his true adventure story born of the marshes and quicksand of Scituate harbor.

The check was presented to Fisher, son of a noted Boston cigar manufacturer, by Miss Trivia Frissora, of the Boston Evening American, while Fisher was in a home with the gripe, and his English setter, Chief Mohawk, looked on with interest.

Fisher who was overseas in the war and who once spoke to Gibbons just before one of the war correspondents' eyes was shot away in France, related his horrible experience when he became trapped in quicksand while hunting early on August 20, 1918.

Up to his chin in the treacherous sands and still sinking, he was rescued in the nick of time after he had faced death for nearly two hours.

Now Floyd Gibbons wants the story of your most harrowing experience. Send it to Floyd Gibbons, care of the Boston Evening American, 2 Winthrop square, You may win some of the cash.

Let's have some really cold weather.
This winter hasn't been any test at all for ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH PLUS

OF COURSE, we don't really want extreme weather. But we would like you to see how quickly and smoothly ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH PLUS will start your car, even when the thermometer nose dives far below zero. The winter so far . . . with lows of only 10 to 30 degrees below . . . hasn't given it a chance to show how good it is. You know, this great fuel is deliberately made better than necessary . . . so it will have ample reserve to carry you through any emergencies that may arise.

Atlantic's 3 Little Men

P. S. The Weather Man just told us that at least two more cold snaps are on the way. Be prepared—with ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH PLUS. It's packed with Quick-Starting Power.

KNOW YOUR CAR

THE MOST important thing about starting in winter is to know your car . . . just as a jockey knows his mount. A little practice in starting will give you instantaneous response at slow engine speed. Never race your motor immediately after starting. That tears it apart; it causes more rough wear and damage than you are apt to get in 1000 miles of normal driving. If you can start smoothly, the chances are the other factors are all right. But if you have a condition that requires "racing exercises," it's an indication that something is wrong—either with your engine or the gasoline you are using.

Make a friend of The Atlantic Man in your neighborhood. He can probably condition your car so it will give the finest kind of winter performance; and he is always glad to see you and help in every way he can.

No business can long endure without true service to its customers. We believe that ATLANTIC's steady growth over 70 years reflects the extra quality which we constantly strive to put in our products. . . . We think of ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH PLUS as something more than "just gasoline." It must definitely be the best . . . so as to meet the emergencies of life, as well as to give dependable and inexpensive service in every-day use.

BEAUTY On Stand for SLAYER

TO BARE LOVE OF KENNAMER

By International News Service
Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 15
—Beautiful Virginia Wilcox is "going to bat" for Phil Kennamer.

The daughter of Homer Wilcox, millionaire Tulsa oil man, is going to take the witness stand to testify for the 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer at his trial for the murder of John Garroll.

VIRGINIA WILCOX
Witness for Killer

Pretty Brunette

Virginia, a pretty brunette, was described by Moss as "a little flower, one of the most beautiful girls in the Southwest."

"It's no wonder Phil fell for her said the attorney. "And why didn't she fall for Phil?" he was asked. "You know how it is," said Moss. "She just did not like his type. She is in love, at least for the present, with Jack Snedden."

Sent Flowers

"He was so mad about her," said Snedden, "he used to send her flowers on nights when I was taking her to a dance or a party."

Moss, in making his address to the jury, said that his love for Virginia was so intense that it threw him off his balance.

Finally, said Moss, when John Garroll threatened to kidnap her and write an extortion note, intended for her father, demanding $2000, the boy defendant went completely "wild" with fear for the girl of his dreams and killed the young dental college student.

NARCOTIC Smuggling Probe OPENS HERE

A grand jury investigation of the narcotic smuggling racket here was started today at the instance of United States District Attorney Francis J. W. Ford.

The action resulted from the arrest of Mrs. Leah Neilson, 37, and John Murphy, 45, South End, charged with being "passers" of dope.

They were captured, police said, on information gleaned during the investigation of the murder of Joseph P. "Red" Sweaney, on whose body was found a quantity of dope.

Guide to New Books —BY MILES ALDEN—

PASSING JUDGMENTS — By George Jean Nathan—Alfred A. Knopf.

George Jean Nathan, the Saint Beuve of the American stage, and probably the most enthusiastic critic of any facet of the American artistic scene, knows a few of the tricks of the craft that he has studied so long.

The theatrical press agent, who could oblige a reviewer as Mr. Nathan does in the first sentence of "Passing Judgments," would glow with self-satisfaction for months, says Mr. Nathan.

"It is the mark of a very young critic to regard praise as a symptom of weakness." With no feminine intent to conceal my age, I at once give Mr. Nathan his full meed of praise. His latest book, born of his often disappointed optimism for the "show business," deserves it. To quote so rare a thing as an honest and restrained jacket blurb: "A volume of critical essays summing up Mr. Nathan's opinions on all aspects of the present greatly changed and reborn American theater and drama, with side reflections on allied phases of life and letters."

The chapters include a confidential and searching appraisal of the pericarditis of criticism as it is currently practiced; a survey of the reasons why the theater that once satisfied us has lost caste; an analysis of the fictitious, multi-written-of glamour of the theater of the so-called good old days; a sharp and penetrating scrutiny of the present-day European theater, and a contemplation of the many persistent but hollow critical legends about the theater and its players."

SKULL Of Sea Beast AMAZES CAPE

Provincetown, Feb. 15—Sea captains have told engrossing tales of fire-morning sea "sargasses" many times, but it remained to the captain of the schooner Elizabeth M. to bring home the evidence.

And today the Cape is making a pilgrimage to the birthplace of many a hairy sea-giant to look. The evidence is a skull more improbable than the wildest imaginings of the tallest tale. It has horns with three prongs. It has cavities four inches wide where the eyes were. It has a great hard lump for a nose. And at the top of the skull is a hole—said to be for smothering steam.

BOY SAVES Chum, Then DIES, A HERO

By International News Service
New York, Feb. 18.—Greater love hath no man . . .
They were mourning 12-year-old Tom Mahoney in Greenwich Village today.
Tom and his pal, John Russell, 12, were playing on Pier 43 at the North River yesterday. Suddenly John slipped and fell into the icy water. Without a moment's hesitation, Tom plunged after him.
The current was swift and there were ice cakes in the river. But Tom managed to reach his chum and haul him to shore. He called to a passerby, who yanked the two boys to safety.
Emergency crews worked over John and in a little while he was all right and able to go home. But the cold and exertion proved too much for Tom.
With a brave, little smile on his boyish lips, he passed on . . . a hero.

WE ASKED LEADERS IN WINTER SPORTS:

"Is this fact important to you?"

"Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos — Turkish and Domestic — than any other popular brand."

(Signed) R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

FLAVOR! Jack Shea, Olympic Champion speed skater: "Camels sure so good that with me Camels get the nod every time. When people mention my being a cigarette smoker, I correct them and say, 'I'm a Camel smoker.' For sheer pleasure, there's nothing like a Camel."

MILDNESS! Betty Chase, expert skater, gives this answer: "Camels are so mild and appealing! Their taste is so pleasant! And smoking Camels steadily never tells on my nerves. To me, it's a very important fact that Camels use finer and choicest tobaccos."

VALUE! "I'm just an interested winter sports fan," says Edward Kane. "But I'm with Jack Shea and Ray Stevens when it comes to smoking Camels! I get a lift with a Camel when I'm low and need cheering up, or when I'm tired. And the fact that tobaccos of a choicer quality are used in Camels goes far to explain why Camels are so mild and pleasing, and never jar my nerves. It means a lot to me that millions more are spent for the tobaccos used in Camels."

ENERGY! "Camel's 'energizing effect' is a great thing for any one who is active," says Paul Thompson, right wing and high scorer of the world-champion Chicago Black Hawks hockey team. "When I come off the rink, dead tired, there's just one thing I want—a Camel!"

HEALTHY NERVES! "Screaking through an icy bob run demands nerves of steel," says Ray Stevens, North American Bob-Sled Champion. "When the last heat has been run, I light a Camel and enjoy it to the full, knowing that Camels never bother my nerves!"

QUINS' CHIEF PROBLEM: TEETH -- OR RATHER LACK OF THEM

SPEAKING TO ME, MISTER?—Cecile Dionne, most patient and good-natured of the quintuplets, looks up through her long eyelashes with an expression of mild inquiry. She's working industriously to persuade the first of her tiny milk-teeth to come pricking through her little red gums. Her teeth are her chief problem just now, as they are of her four sisters. The little Canadians probably do not realize just how important teeth will be to them, or how painful teething will be. But that bane of babyhood is now just upon them. Here's hoping that it will not be too painful for them, and that it will be over in a hurry. Then the "quins" will be able to give their full attention to the many pleasant surprises this big world has in store for them.

GOOD KITTY—Something more than just a rattle is Emilie's kitty, as you can see. But it is harder to say whether little Miss Dionne is about to kiss her favorite toy—or take a very sizable bite out of it. Either way, you can be sure she likes it. If you want to be really scientific about it, we'll tell you that all this biting on the part of the babies does not represent viciousness or hunger at all. It's just Nature's way of helping them to cut their first teeth as rapidly as possible.

NO NEED FOR ALARM—There's no doubt that Annette is biting her kitty, probably giving it something to squeak about. However, there is really no need to be alarmed about her pet. Teeth are things that the little Dionnes have not bothered to grow as yet. Nevertheless Miss Annette does have a very business-like approach. All this preliminary gum biting will help her teeth to come through the faster. And it will help her to know how to use them when they do arrive. Thousands, who have never watched a baby of their own develop, are now getting all the thrills of parenthood through their observation of the Dionne sisters.

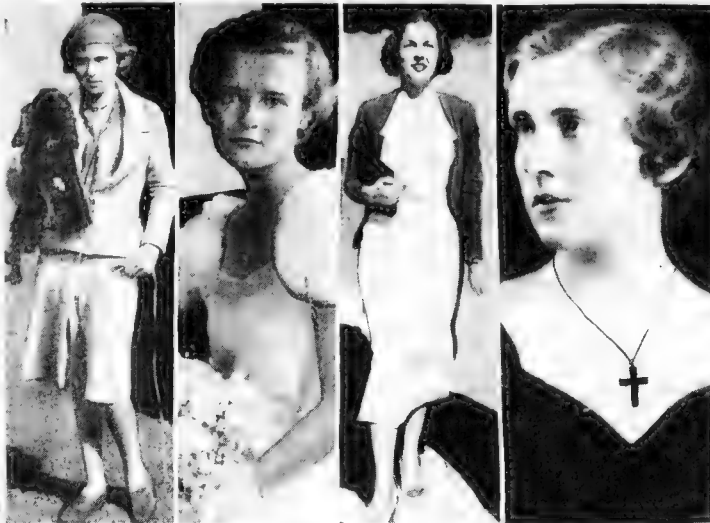

MILLENS Again to APPEAL

TO HIGH U. S. COURT

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk county asked Judge Nelson P. Brown today how soon he would be able to pass sentence of death upon the Millen brothers and Abner.

Although the conviction of the Neeshan bank robbery and murders were not in question, it was not that the United States court of appeals had turned down their plea that they be permitted action in the United States supreme court.

This action was taken by the court in the case of the Millen brothers and Abner. The court has granted the appeal and the case will be heard in the United States supreme court.

SEA Tragedy BARED

FIND BODIES OF SPONGERS

Tarpon Springs, Fla., Feb. 15.—A ghastly sea tragedy, in which five Greek sponge fishermen lost their lives, was revealed today when the charred hull of the sponge boat Xios, missing for more than a year, was located in the gulf sponge beds.

Three of the crew were apparently killed in an explosion of gasoline that converted the ship into their funeral pyre.

The lives of two divers were snuffed out as they worked, clad in their grotesque diving suits, on the coast floor of the gulf, their air supply cut off.

The blackened hull of the Xios was found afloat and still anchored in a little frequented part of the gulf sponge beds.

In its charred hold lay the skeletons of three of its crew.

And at the bottom of the gulf, in 30 feet of water, lay the crumpled skeletons of the two divers, still encased in their rubber and metal diving suits, held to the fire-swept ship by their lifelines.

Birdmen Out to Set New Record

Renewed attempts to lower the endurance flight record of nearly seven minutes for R. O. C. model planes will be made tomorrow morning when Junior Birdmen squadrons will compete in their fifth monthly tournament at South Armory, 18 Irvington street.

The record is now held by Louis B. Young, 14, of Newton Center and was set in December. Low temperatures handicapped efforts to beat that mark last month.

Prizes for the monthly meet are $3 each for first place, $2 for second, $1 for third and eight tickets to Low State Theater for fourth place. The squadron winning fourth place tomorrow will see Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery in "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" and Victor Jory in "Mills of the Gods."

In addition all contestants and other active Junior Birdmen who attended the meet will be given free tickets to see "Devil Dog of the Air" at the Metropolitan Theater. The thrilling drama of Marine Corps flying features James Cagney and Pat O'Brien.

Elizabeth Peabody Company to Produce Operetta

By BETTY ALDEN

THE RECENT VISIT of the Savoyards in Boston so greatly revived interest in the immortal operettas of Gilbert and Sullivan that society is learning with great pleasure that the Elizabeth Peabody Opera Company will produce one of the operettas on March 1 and 2 at the Peabody Playhouse.

Since tickets may be obtained by subscription only, the audiences at these performances will be very exclusive and fashionable.

"Ruddigore, the Witches' Cruise," is the choice for this event and as the operetta was not included in the Savoyards repertoire its presentation here will be fresh and novel.

Miss Jane McGrew and Mr. Joe Lee are among the prominent social leaders who are lending their support to the undertaking.

English Union Tea

VISITING ENGLISH celebrities certainly have an opportunity of meeting and taking with the leaders of Boston's real old aristocracy at the English Speaking Union parties... a privilege which does not often fall to the lot of many of Boston's fashionable as these parties attract older members of our first families who make themselves quite inconspicuous by infrequent ventures into the social activities of the city.

Yesterday afternoon at the Junior League the Union honored Dame Sybil Thorndike at a large tea... Dr. John Bartol, president of the Union, presided at the meeting in the ballroom of the League headquarters before tea and introduced the visiting English actress who gave one of her delightful impromptu speeches.

Around the tea tables, gayly decorated with Valentine colors, the guests met in groups to exchange greetings and to enjoy the warmth and cheer which was a decided contrast to the damp, dull scene outside... Mrs. John Hawes garbed in brown, Mrs. Sewall Cabot in a cherry red dress and Mrs. Henry Murray with luxurious silver fox furs having her shoulders were in the group as were Mrs. James Torbert, Mrs. Max Talbot and Miss Alice Thorndike, the latter explaining that it was too bad that her name and that of the guest of honor were not leaves from the same family tree.

Emerald Green Trimmings

MR. AND MRS. HORACE BINNEY enjoyed the speech and reception but did not carry tea... Mrs. Walter C. Baynes was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Randall Clifford... Mrs. Jaffrey de Hautville Bell, Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, in a black dress with emerald green trimmings, Miss Susan Bradlee and Miss Sarah Bradlee of Milton, Mrs. Richard Lawrence, Mrs. Francis Wendell, Miss Charlotte Allen and Mrs. Livingston Davis all enjoyed meeting the celebrated Dame Sybil.

The British Consul General Hugh A. Ford, and Mr. Gray, the vice consul, attended, as did Mr. and Mrs. William Dams Orest.

Bright crimson silk with black bolton bands fashioned the ensemble of Priscilla Bartol as she presided at one end of the tea table... Very youthful and pretty, Mrs. Hamilton Osgood, 24, wearing a black tulip dress with matching hat, attracted a great deal of attention as she assisted Mr. John Bartol and Mrs. John W. Farley with hostess duties.

Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French was accompanied by Helen Zelinskaya, the actress who plays the part of the discerning old German mother in "Dadsworth."

While Mrs. Jimmie Dean... shared with Arts Dawson, Paul P. Bird, Jr., as helping Jimmie Dean keep the home fires burning at the Deans' Cohasset home... Paul is a brother of Mary Sk-Bird who is now in Austria, and also of the former Alma Bird who had Mrs. Dean as a bridesmaid at her recent marriage in San Antonio.

Mrs. Dean and Miss Dawson will be welcomed back to these shores in a few weeks.

Wedding of Washington's Birthday

THOUGH HEARTS AND FLOWERS were the appropriate subject for yesterday, we have received a few tidings of events which will be keeping Dan Cupid busy for the next few months.

Lena Sill, whose engagement to John Clark Prescott, son of one of New England's distinguished old families, has just been announced, will be married on Washington's Birthday at a quiet ceremony at her family's home in Westboro... Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Sill, the latter being commissioner of the Massachusetts Girl Scouts.

Through marriage Miss Sill will become the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Prescott and the granddaughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Fairfield street.

Margaret Lang, the eldest daughter of the Malcolm Langs, has been designing clothes for friends and family ever since her return from Europe over a year ago, and now she is busy indulging her artistic talents in planning her trousseau and the frock of the attendants who will precede her down the aisle at her marriage to Donald Spencer early in May.

Daphne Brooks to Make Debut

VERY INFORMAL and unpretentious will be the party this evening at which Miss Daphne Brooks will make her debut... Mr. and Mrs. Gorham Brooks of Brookline will be host and hostess at the small dance at the Women's Republican Club in which only the closest friends of Miss Daphne have been bidden.

Mr. Shepherd Brooks and Mr. Shaun Kelly, Jr., will head the ushers, who will be entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Brooks before the dance.

MISS ALICE MERIAM

MISS ALICE WEATHERBEE

DESPITE THE ROUND of social engagements many of society's debutantes and post-debs spend much of their time to cheer up the little inmates of the Boston Floating Hospital, one of the Emergency Campaign beneficiaries.

First Lecture

THE EXCLUSIVE BOSTON appearance of Sheila Kaye-Smith will be sponsored by the League of Catholic Women, at the Copley-Plaza on next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The English novelist will speak on "Women's Position and Future in the Social Structure."

This is the first of a series of three lectures under the direction of the league and is being sponsored by Governor James M. Collins. Miss Mary Curley, Mr. G. B. Hugh Allen, and Prof. William Cleveland Rogers, Professor Matthew Cooper, Rev. Dr. John Francis Fitzpatrick and Miss Louie Moore, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Maguire, Professor Sidney Quinn.

Chalet Party Tonight

ST. VALENTINE will arrive a day late to be present this evening at the Chalet in Chestnut Hill when the Philomathean Club presents a party to benefit the Philomathean scholars' fund.

Mrs. Daniel J. H. Stand to active in charitable affairs, heads the committee.

Sponsors

MRS. JAMES JACKSON, Mrs. William P. Homans and Mrs. Francis E. Satterly have added their names to the list of patrons for the lecture on the international workers in Russia which Mrs. Tabitha Turner will deliver this evening.

The lecture which is to be given in Indian Hall at 8:30 p.m. describes the work of the Russian Club and will benefit club dues.

Debutante Silhouettes

Number Thirteen

PETITE, vivacious and blonde is this post-deb who has appeared in Vincent Club and Junior League plays. Although she lives in Brookline and made her debut at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton, her real home is in Hot Springs, Ark., where her mother and father reside. Do you know her?

Miss L. W. Betty Alden will send you the original drawing of your silhouette if you would care to have it.

The debutante whose profile appeared last Wednesday is Sally Byron.

"The Light That Moved So Strangely"

A Woman's Hair Raising Experience in a Morningside Drive Apartment

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's a yarn, boys and girls, of an adventure that maybe some of you have been through yourselves. By golly, I cannot imagine anything more horrible than to lie helpless like a bird in a cage that a cat has gotten into, while a murderous prowler stalks the halls of your own home.

That is what happened to Mrs. Rosalie Corcoran of 1223 E. 48th street, Brooklyn—an experience that nearly frightened her out of a year's growth—and if the same thing has happened to any of you other boys and girls, why let's hear about it. I'd like to know how you felt when confronted with a situation like this one.

This one happened in December, '34. The Corcorans were living on Morningside Drive, then, opposite the park. There were two twin beds in the bedroom and a crib for the baby. Usually Mr. Corcoran slept in one of those twin beds and Mrs. Corcoran in the other. But on this particular night, Mrs. Corcoran wanted to do a bit of reading in bed and he was afraid the light would annoy his wife and the baby, so he took his book and his pipe and his bedroom slippers and went to sleep in the spare room across the hall.

Mrs. Corcoran went to bed in her own room, leaving her husband to sit up reading. She slept for a while and then woke up suddenly, not knowing exactly why, but feeling that something was wrong. Across the hall a light burned and she thought at first that her husband was still reading. Then she noticed that the light kept moving about in a most peculiar manner.

For a minute she thought that was strange—wondered what her husband was doing playing with the bed-light at that hour in the morning. Then she noticed something else. That light didn't light up the room the way the bed-light usually did. Instead of giving a soft, rosy glow to the entire room it concentrated its beams in one part or the other, leaving the rest of the bedroom in almost total darkness. Then she noticed the light concentrate on one small spot on the wall and realized it was a flashlight that was providing the illumination.

Mrs. Corcoran held her breath. She knew there wasn't a flashlight in the house—knew that its presence in the room across the hall could mean only one thing. A burglar! She turned her head, wriggled around as quietly as possible until she could get a better view of the spare bedroom, and lay still, waiting—trembling all over.

She didn't have long to wait. In a few seconds a man came out of that room—a big, rough, coarse-looking fellow. He tiptoed down the hall and put the burglar chain on the door. Then he went quietly to the back of the hall and cut the telephone wires.

Frightened, she lay there watching. Every moment of it seemed like a year. Her heart was thumping as hard as she felt sure the burglar must hear it. She watched him flash his light all around the living room—watched that light move closer and closer, until the burglar came tiptoeing right into her bedroom and stood beside the baby's crib. She must have been a little then, for, like a flash, he stooped—crouched down to look in the crib.

Then a new kind of fear came over Mrs. Corcoran—the worst fear a mother can know. She felt sure, now, that that big, rough-looking fellow had come after her baby.

She screamed! "Please," she cried. "Please don't take my baby!"

The burglar rose swiftly, noiselessly, from his corner behind the crib. He came over to Mrs. Corcoran's bed, flashlight in one hand, drawing a wicked-looking gun with the other. He pushed the gun against Mrs. Corcoran's side and said: "I'm not after babies. I'm after money. You got any money?"

She fought to find her voice. Hysterically, she said: "No. We're poor people. We haven't any money." The burglar looked at the vacant twin bed and said: "Where's your husband?" She pointed to the room across the hall. "In there," she said.

The burglar pushed the gun a little harder into her side. "Listen," he said, "I'm going now—and if you yell I'll make trouble." Then, like a flash, he was gone, gliding down the hall as noiselessly as he had come.

A cold perspiration ran down Mrs. Corcoran from head to foot. She lay still for a while, crying out hysterically, again and again: "Are you gone, mister—are you gone?" How long that went on she doesn't remember. Then, somehow, she managed to get up—got into the room across the hall, where her husband lay.

He was fast asleep. Like a mad person she shook him awake—grasped out her story. At first he thought she had a nightmare, but after listening a while he finally became convinced. He rang for the elevator man—sent for the police. Detectives surrounded the building.

They found a man in the neighborhood of the house who looked suspicious. They brought him in to Mrs. Corcoran, but she couldn't identify him as the one who had come in the night before. He stood beside her bed, pushed a gun into her side.

Mrs. Corcoran didn't sleep another wink all the rest of that night. In fact, she didn't sleep very well nights at all for quite a while. For weeks she kept waking up in the small hours thinking—wondering somebody in her room. Her husband, on the other hand, wasn't easily perturbed about it. When the excitement was all over he only commented was: "Well, he wasn't such a bad fellow—he didn't hurt you."

But Mrs. Corcoran doesn't want to run into any more birds like that one—even if they don't hurt her.

Then, boys and girls, is the story of a scare that is hard to rest. But, on the other hand, there are plenty of you who have had worse scares. Write down the facts and send them in now. Get your lubbuck bill before the Government starts making them. The next adventure shows the hero at grips with "The Strangling Clutch of Death."
